A part of Cornerstone Development Project Downtown Tacoma

A New Beginning

TACOMA, WASH. - A plan to rejuvenate the Broadway Plaza area of Tacoma's Central Business District was announced yesterday by George Weyerhaeuser, president of Weyerhaeuser Company, which was founded in Tacoma nearly 82 years ago, and Pal Schell, president of Cornerstone Development Company, a Weyerhaeuser Company subsidiary.

Expressing confidence in the strength and vitality of downtown Tacoma, Weyerhaeuser and Schell unveiled a plan for a mixed use commercial development which combines a hotel, office space in new and rehabilitated structure, retail space along the Plaza, an athletic facility and supportive parking. Cornerstone has purchased and/or optioed all the land required for the project.

Schell emphasized that the overall plan is still contingent upon the outcome of 1)ongoing negotiations regarding space commitments for developed space, and 2)the City of Tacoma's application for a federal UDAG grant.

The proposed project includes:

--Sears Building Project. - Work will begin this week on renovation on the old Sears building and garage. 80,000 square feet of office and 25,000 square feet of retail space will be developed at a total cost of $7,500,000.

-- Broadway Plaza and Adjacent Building. - These two buildings have been acquired with plans for their redevelopment including a retail public market, with an inner arcade of small spaces for small shops and fresh food stalls. Project cost is estimated at $2 Million.

-- 320 room first class hotel adjacent to the Bicentennial Pavilion. The property has been option, the design is being developed by TRA Architects of Seattle and Alan Liddle of Tacoma, and Hospitality Marketing and Management, Inc.,with a Sheration franchise, has been selected as operator. William Coffee, President of HMMI is a Tacoma native, who formerly managed the Winthrop Hotel

The City of tacoma is applying for an Urban Development Action Grant from the federal government to assist with long term financing of the hotel project.

-- Acquistition of a now-vacant site near 10th and Broadway, adjacent to the Pantages Theater which itself will soon undergo rehabilitation. A purchase agreement has been signed, with closing anticipated November 1. This property would be held for a later phase of the plan. Depending upon the success of preleasing efforts, Cornerstone would build another office structure above Broadway Plaza retail space.

-- Negotiations are underway with three interested parties or organizations to lease and operate an adult athletic complex which would be constructed on the top floor of the Sears Parking Garage, also acquired by Cornerstone on October 1. A firm commitment to lease and operate is required before Cornerstone

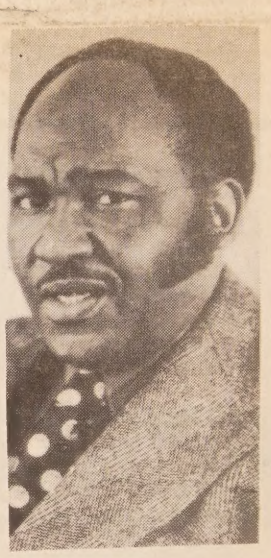
Art Fletcher To Speak On Black Political Involvement In The 1980's



Art Fletcher

BY MADISON KING

Arthur Fletcher, former assistant to president Nixon and Ford, will speak Sunday, October 18, 1981 from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the Empire Plaza.

Mr. Fletcher is presently a Washington, D.C. business consultant and is in demand from coast to coast to speak on the subject of Black political involvement in a period of conservative dominion - an era which will severely test the political resiliency of Black America.

Mr. Fletcher believes the Democratic party may have, in a large measure, shifted its focus away from black problems, therefore Black people may be propelled to a more advanced stage of political and economic development. This kind of thinking could also free Black people to be more pragmatic in their political associations.

The subject of local politics and the myth of the two party system as it relates to Black people will also be addressed by Mr. Fletcher.

UNDERMINING SOCIAL SECURITY

BY

Vernon E. Jordan, Jr.

Social Security is the most popular federal program and has been since it was started back in the 1930s. Now it is being undermined by widely-backed proposals to cut back benefits, and by scare tactics used by the system's opponents that suggest imminent bankruptcy for the Social Security trust funds.

The constant barrage of reports that "Social Security is in trouble" are wrong. The system is not in trouble, and it won't be if Congress resists the plans to cut it.

A short-term deficit is likely in the trust fund that finances pension payments. That can easily be dealt with by shuffling money between the various funds making up Social Security or by using general revenue.

There is no reason to overhaul a system that works because of a 2temporary cash flow problem that is easily resolved. By 1986, for demographic reasons, the funds will be solvent again. After that, trouble is not expected until well into the next century, leaving pleanty of time to work out long-range answers to long-range problems.

So it is just plain wrong to frame the system's problems in grossly exaggerated terms designed to scare people into losing confidence that they will ever collect their retirement benefits.

And it is wrong to try to correct the system's minor problems through major surgery affecting the most vulnerable of the elderly. But that is what many current proposals amount to.

Last summer, the Administration rammed through one such idea. It persuaded Congress to drop the minimum benefit, a measly $30 per week. That was a terrible blow to the poorest of the elderly -- many of them women who typically worked in low-paying jobs or in non-covered employment.

They were told that if they can't make it without the minimum benefit, they could always apply for welfare. That insulted elderly people who worked hard for low wages all their lives just to keep off the welfare rolls.

With Congress moving swiftly to rescind that callous move, the President has decided to join in asking for restoration of the minimum benefit -- a wise decision. But the flap over that issue has severely damaged his credibility in the coming debate over the future of social security.

After all ,people heard him say he would not take any benefits away from current recipients, and then he proposed a measure that would strip away the minimum below which no elderly person could fall.

So while the Administration is to be commended for now attempting to put social security on a permanently sound footing, its track record in dealing with the poor and the elderly engender great suspicion.

Those doubts were only reinforced by the President's

Mason Family Urge Unification

The signs of the time clearly indicate that black americans and other disadvantaged persons are rapidly losing the socio-economic gains they knew after the civil rights struggle of the 1960's. Black leaders across the nation have become alarmed. Leaders of the Prince Hall Masonic Family have been articulating the urgent need for unification and the coming together of masonic minds to devise ways and means to deal with this ever increasing problem. There is also deep concern about the slow membership growth of Prince Hall Masonry in many jurisdictions as well as the low public awareness of what themasonic fraternity is all about, and the need to strengthen our support of the NAACP and other organizations that are advancing the causing of the disadvantaged.

In view of this, 43 Grand Masters across the nation will be participating in a summit meeting. After much discussion, the agenda will include: Housing, Affirmative Action, Social Security, Voting Rights, Energy Costs, Health Costs, Education, Legal Services, Employment, Minority Contract Protection, Occupational needs and careers Nationwide, Declining and Stagnant Masonic Membership in Many Jurisdictions, Masonic family and its relationship with the NAACP and Grassroots Organizations...

The Action Plan include: Seeking out Black members in the present Reagan Administration who would come and give a true appraisal of the black situation. The Masonic Fraternity becoming the cornerstone for building unity and combining forces with other organizations to deal with the problems impacting upon blck people and the disadvanged organizations such as Churches, sororities, Greek letter fraternities, Professional Organizations,etc.

Developing a plan to strengthen the NAACP in terms of increasing the membership and financial support. That plan could include promoting life membership for each lodge; promoting the Golden Heritage membership for each Grand Lodge; promoting a sizeable donation from each Grand Lodge.

Developing an effective public relations campaign that would create a greater awareness by the general public of what Prince Hall Masonry is all about. This project could include-publishing

A Look At The Port Commissioner Race

Salatino

On Saturday past, Jim Salatino addressed the Tacoma/ Pierce Co. Block Collective. When asked what he thought was some of the major issues facing the port, Salatino cited jobs, lack of communication with the people. In the area of Equal Opportunity He stated, "I want to see some things done not just talk." On the question of whether the port should be in valued with the terminal he said yes. The port should be involved in every phase because the community benefits. Salatino stated that one of the first resolutions he would propose would be that no elected official could hold a salaried job at the port within 2 yrs. of his/her resignation.

He mentioned that he objected to the Port Commissioners meeting time of 3:00 p.m. He said if elected he would like to create a climate of stability within the port.

Port Commissioner Robert Earley dropped by THE FACTS office for an interview with your editor. He began by telling me during his tenure in the legislature he introduced the first open housing legislature. He also volunteered that without a federal mandate, the call for bids on the new port office building nad a pre-qualifying clause for minority and women self contractor participation. That the job would be monitored by a Port Engineer, who is on the job site at all times, instead of depending on a chance encounter or haphazard monitoring by an EEO officer.

Ques: What about the minority representation in upper management at the port.

Ans Earley: That still is a problem that we are working on - I think the Affirmative Action Plan is headed in the right direction. There has been some significant progress - The committment must come from the top down, I know the committment is there. We will continue to move forward in this arena. One thing I want to emphasize is that young people desiring a career at the port should take traffic (rail, air, motor, marine) after High School and possibly foreign trade. Green River Community College offers such a course. Then we could possibly use them as interns.

It is unfortunate that most minorities with skills we can readily use are already employed. There are some we would love to have however they can almost write their own ticket where they are.

Ques: Do you think the port should be involved with airport?

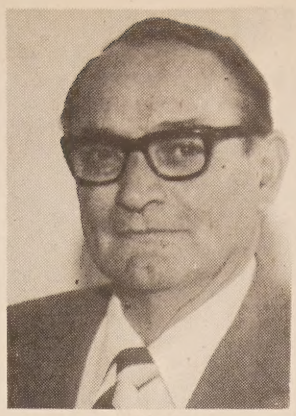
Ans Earley: Yes, to some degree. But not ownership. The port could help find new industry if its enviromentally sound) however its not the type of financial burden the port needs.

Ques: What about the merger?

Ans: Not in the Cards - We, Seattle & Tacoma could work together for regional cooperation but anything else Tacoma would lose unless - a Puget Sound Port Authority was established - including all Ports for Everett to Olympia.

Ques: What about having more than 3 commissioners.

Ans: I would be an advocate for 5 commissioners elected at large -



Earley

The Port is really too important to the People of Pierce County and the State of Washington to let partisian politics get in the way.

Ques.: Why do you have board meetins at 3:00 p.m.?

Ans: We try to have meeting during the business of the day because it seems most convienent to the People doing business with the port, however, we have tried some evening meetings with a very low turnout.

Ques.: What about Fredrickson - as an industrial park?

Ans: I see it as a development for light industry not water related - People think we (the port) have vast amounts of land - 600 acres is not a lot. However, we envision approx. 2000 jobs created at the Fredrickson site once the traffic problems are ironed out.

Ques: What about your refusal to come to a meeting of the Black Forum a few years ago - That seemed to insult members of the Black Community.

Ans: We all do things that we regret at sometime in our lives. I was going thru a personal crisis of my own at that time if that's any excuse and I've often wanted to take back some things but we can't can we!

Black Public Officials To Discuss Strategies For Survival In The 80's

The Fall Meeting of the Northwest Conference of Black Public Officials (NWCBPO) has been announced by the organization's co-presidents, Seattle City Councilmember Norman B. Rice, and Seattle City Council Assistant Tutti Carter-Orange. The meeting will be held on October 24 and 25 at Portland, Oregon's Willamette Center and Hilton Hotel.

With the theme, "The Art of Survival in the 80's: Business and Political Independence," the two-day meeting will feature major presentatives by national figures and reactor/panelists addressing issues as varied as advice on capital investments and techniques for recruiting volunteers. Participants will seek to strengthen the regional network and lay the groundwork for the creation of a political action and business investment base which will gain financial independence for Blacks in the Pacific Northwest.

Nearly two hundred persons attended the 1980 conference; according to both Rice and Orange pre-registration for the 1981 meeting is encouraging. Rice recently commented on the significance of this meeting: "NWCBPO members have expressed the need for us to come together to support, inform, and instruct each other," he said. "We will begin to develop new strategies -- pro-active strategies -- to respond to our constituencies who are for the most part, poor and minority, and whose plights seem to be of little concern to officials of the federal government."

The Northwest Conference of Black Public Officials was established five years ago to increase Black participation at all levels of government and to serve as a resource for Black elected and appointed officials.

The meeting will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m.

continued backing for drastic benefit reductions for those retiring at age 62.

People taking early retirement already get reduced benefits. The majority choose to retire early because they are in poor health or because they can't find work.

We can expect further attacks on benefit levels as political leaders seek spending cuts to absorb the huge deficits caused by tax cuts and military spending.

We must be on guard against any attempt to change Social Security from a universal insurance system to a means-tested welfare program for the elderly. Warnings of impending bankruptcy for the Social Security system and suggestions that people rely on personal savings for retirement only inspire fear.

Due to the recent heavy Federal cuts, many families will not have funds to purchase candies for the many t rick-or-treaters, that bang on their doors. Often no treat result in a trick, i.e., harrassment, property damage, and occassional personal injury. For the disadvangaged, low income family, it is an even greater problem. To minimize these types of behavior, the Eastside Community Church is sponsoring a Halloween Festivity at Majestic Aires Ranch in Yelm, Washington. Some of the activities will be aple dunking, dart balloons, cake walk, sack races, greased pig chase, hay rides, fishing derby pony rides pie-eating contest, go-cart races, and plenty of food.

One of the new services that are being offered in many salons in the larger city and now is finding its way to Tacoma is the way to achieve a total look in fashion.

A person does not have to be a snob or rich when it comes to attempting to achieve that total look. It is becoming more and more important that the hairdress and fashion designer work together.

When a clothing designer released his or her collection it could be a disaster if the models were not wearing the appropriate haristyle and makeup. I am serious. This is the main reason my particular field, hairstyling and makeup, is becoming more and more important.

Wht the salons are doing now, and it seems the department store salon has the edge in this, is working with the fashion people within the store to create a "total" fashionable look for their clients. We are have classes on color, accessories, hairstyles, make-up, and fabric choices. What the nice thing is that all this can be done within most peoples budget. The advice and help is free so the only cost comes from the actual purchase of an outfit and new hairstyle.

Most department stores have clothes that fit every budget. It may take some looking; a few sales; but it can be done. I have learned it is best to by quality and not quantity. By this I mean: Come to the salon; discuss your likes and dislikes, your budget and so forth. My usual advise is a new hairstyle and makeup. I will personally work with you and the fashion personnel in the store departments. What you will find out is they will generally recommend that you buy a few quality things that are interchangeable and can be built on. Why buy or style? You will end up spending more for these than you would for the few quality fashions that will last for many seasons. If you do this wardrobe will appear to be quite large.

So go to your salon and ask about this service. More and more salons and stores are offering this. It is important for you to find someone you can trust, you'll be glad you did.

GUS IS BACK!

The SuperSonics lookec like their old selves on the fast break the other night. Gus was doing his thing, and I mean he was doing it. No doubt about it, he is back in rare form. The onics last but, that was not the important part about it. They showed that with Lonnie and Gus in the line up they will be a contender for the N.B.A. Championship this year. Danny Vranes looked good also. Go head on and do it Supersonics....The Seahawks has lost the last 14 out of 15 games including last year. There must be a problem somewhere. Seattle seems to have the personel to do most of the jobs. So what about the coaching staff? Steve Meyer, former quarterback of the Seahawks, may have said it all. There is not a player, coach relationship here. To much military like discipline. That plus some weird calls on the goal line and other key situations make me wonder if Jack Petera is a head Football coach or a defensive coordinator.....What about Mr. October? Reggie has come through again in the clutches. The two run homer he hit "353 feet" started the Yanks off to the American League Eastern Playoffs Championship. Reggie and Billy Ball, that will be a super American League playoff....The Huskies put a scare in some loyal followers last weekend. Coming from behind to beat the California Bears 27-26. One lady said the first half they looked like they never played football before. The second half they got it together. "Right on" for the Dogs.....It was said that Wilson didn't practice two times last week, because they were to play Bellermine. Well it back fired on them didn't it? Bellermine stun the Wilson Rams 7-0. Wilsons Quarterback was not suppose to have gotten soiled in the last two games. That was changed also. The wolves of South Kitsap are alone in the first place now. I wonder who, if anybody, can prevent them from staying there? We will find out Friday, when they will invade the Lions Den.

In making these appointments, Gardner stressed that any individual or group with recommendations to contribute should write to the specific task force in care of the Office f the County Executive.

BLACK COLLEGE MOVEMENT PAYS OFF-- The Coalition for Black Colleges Coordinator Tony Brown (fourth from right) with White House dignitaries and Black educators applaud President Ronald Reagan's signing of an historic Executive Order to help Black colleges and directing a $9. 6 million increase for these schools Left to right: Dr. William R. SIMILARITY OF FOODS IN EAST & WEST AFRICA, DANCES SHOW KINSHIP OF AMERICAN BLACKS

In Nairobi, Kenya, at noon Tuesday, I finally met Ngugi, scholar, author, and currently the most popular and profound opponent of neo-colonialism in Kenya. I met him and some of his friends at the popular outdoor restaurant on the spacious porch of the Norfolk, reportedly a Jewish-owned hotel recently bombed by an alleged Arab terrorist.

I began our conversation by noting that I came along -- therefore, he should feel free to express his opinions since the only witnesses to our conversations would be his friends. He seemed to dappreciate this frankness and soon warmed to the visit.

The stockily built Ngugi bears the signs of the physical deprivatio of maximum security imprisonment as comfortably as he wears his revolutionary commitment, intellectuality, and artistry. He definitely knows who he is and is certain of his above-personal purpose in life. I was pleased with hos casual but perceptive a person he is.

This no doubt contributes to his popularity and respect among ordinary Kenyan working people, which I observed in a restaurant in an outdoor native center of retail stands, called Kariokor, where we lunched Thursday.

There we continued our broad conversation on Black liberation, punctuated by our fingers steadily pushing ugali into our mouths.

Ugali is a dish made of pounded and boiled dry maize. It is eaten with small, open-roasted chunks of goat meat sometimes replaced by beef or mutton.

Also, we had a side dish of greens, cooked much as in the United States. I also sampled irio, a dish similar to Ugali, but mixed with peas and carrots.

The ugali more than satisfied my appetite -- and tasted like fufu, a dish to which I was introduced idn Liberia and Ghana, when I visited Africa's west coast in 1968, with my longtime friend and Chicago businessman, Leslie Bland.

Incidentally, this similarity of foods between the east and west coasts of Africa, as well as the ease with which I learned the disco dances dhere and in Zimbabwe, could indicate a stronger and not fully recognized, cultural kinship between tribes and nations all over Africa--which, of course, would mean that American Blacks are all-over Africans, even though our foreparents were captured on the west coast for export into American slavery.

About midnight, Ngugi and I ended our companionship joyously -- drinking good Kenyan beer in a crowded, small tavern, in a shanty town outside Nairobi.

The next morning, I left with the delegation for exotic Somalia. It is a Moslem national immediately northeast of Kenya, and is one of the poorest in the world.

That area is known as the horn of Africa because of how it juts into the Indian Ocean. There, we are t check on the American financed refugee camps outside Somalia's capital city of Moggadishu, which stretches a along the ocean shore.

The refugees are from the famished Ogaden region of its neighbor, Ethiopia, While that region is in Ethiopia, Somalia claims it because of the ethnic kinship of its nomadic residents to Somalians.

Since it is so close to the desert, I wonder why anyone wants it -- let alone, fight over it. The US government supports Somalia perhaps because it provides our country's naval forces with an ideal base near the troubled Afghanistan and oil riches of the Middle East.

We are on the wrong side, as usual, since all Black African nations support Ethiopia in this bloody conflict. Soviet Russia also backs the Thiopians, though, until a year or so ago, it backed Somalia.

Next week. I will report from Nigeria.

NEW BEGINNING

would build this facility.

-- Cornerstone is negotiating for a purchase agreement to acquire the Knights of Pythias Building, acorss Broadway Plaza from the 10th and Broadwa site. If these negotiations are successful, the building would be renovated into a theater (for both movie and live performances) an ancilliary restaurant, and would restore the ground-level retail space.

Cornerstone, which presently is engaged in a six-sqyare block rehabilitation and renewal project at Waterfront Center, near the Seattle waterfront, said that its Tacoma plan grew from marketing studies that indicate that:

. Pierce County willgrow faster than King County during the 1980s.

Nearly 5,000 new jobs will be added by 1990 in the Tacoma central business district.

. Growth is anticipated in Port of Tacoma activities.

. The surge of redevelopment that has begun in the business center in recent years has made such a plan feasible.

Mr. Schell said the redevelopment plan will help overcome Tacoma's "image inertia" which he said has slowed investment in the central business district below the level indicated by the econmic opportunty.

Cornerstone's development plan is based upon the following urban development principles:

1. Providing a mix of uses.

2. Establishing a "critical mass" of retail activity.

2 Mixing new constructionwith rehabilitation and renovation.

4. Concentrating project elements in close proximity to existing public improvements.

Schell noted that the success of any major development project depends upon the support of a dedicated local government and space commitments from corporate business leaders. Weyerhaeuser Company and Cornerstone have confidence that both exist in Tacoma today.

CHOIR TO PRESENT PLU CONCERT

The internationally-recognized Norman Luboff Choir will appear in concert at Pacific Lutheran University Saturday, Oct. 24.

Sponsored by the PLU Artist Series, the concert will be held in Olson Auditorium at 8 pm.

The 23-voice Luboff choir, which has achieved a reputation unmatched by any choral group in the world, will present a varied program of classical music, popular songs, show tunes, folk songs and gospel music.

Organized by Luboff in the mid-'50's as a recording group, the choir has toured nationally and internationally since 1963, presenting over 100 concerts each season. During that time the choir has also recorded more than 75 LP albums.

A Sioux City, Ia., reviewer wrote recently, "(The choir's distinctive sound is warm, but never lush. The discipline and concentration of the group is practically flawless--the diction clear and precise--and through it all the atmosphere is relaxed."
